In India, the concept of empty leg flights is gaining traction, offering a cost-effective alternative to traditional private jet travel. These flights occur when a private jet has to return empty to its base or is repositioning for its next booked journey. Leveraging this opportunity, travelers can book these empty legs at significantly reduced rates compared to standard private jet charters. JetSetGo, a prominent private aviation company in India, has been at the forefront of popularizing empty leg flights. By providing real-time information on available empty legs, JetSetGo allows customers to enjoy the luxury of private jet travel at a fraction of the usual cost, making it more accessible to a broader audience.
